However, once you have used these links to leave our site you should note that we do not have any control over that other website. Use of cookies

A cookie is a piece of text, which asks permission to be placed on your computer's hard drive. Once you agree, your browser adds that text in a small file. A cookie helps analyse web traffic or lets you know when you visit a particular site. Cookies allow web applications to respond to you as an individual. The web application can tailor its operations to your needs, likes and dislikes by gathering and remembering information about your preferences.

We use traffic log cookies to identify which pages are being used. This helps us analyse data about web page traffic and improve our website in order to tailor it to customer needs. Denial of a traffic log cookie should not prevent you from using this site; however it may restrict the use of certain features.

Overall, cookies help us provide you with a better website, by enabling us to monitor which pages you find useful and which you do not. A cookie in no way gives us access to your computer or any information about you, other than the data you choose to share with us. This practice is strictly in force. We know that people have concerns about cookies, but we believe that the benefit we both gain from their proper use is worthwhile. You may set your web browser (Microsoft Internet Explorer or Netscape Navigator) to notify you of cookie placement requests or decline cookies completely. You can delete the files that contain cookies - those files are stored as part of your Internet browser.

Web bugs

A Web bug is a graphic on a Web page or in an email message designed to monitor who is reading the page or message. Web bugs are often invisible because they are typically only 1-by-1 pixels in size. In many ways they are similar to cookies but there is no facility in a browser to disable them.

Use of Java and/or ActiveX components

There may be pages on this site that use Java scripts or ActiveX elements to enhance their appearance or functionality. Tamworth Enterprise College appreciates that because it is possible to use these add-ins to make changes to the settings on a PC some users may have disabled them in their browser, or their office/school network may not allow them. If this is true for you then you may find that there are pages that may not display properly, or the interactive elements will not work for you. We hope that this will not spoil your use of our website at www.tamworthenterprisecollege.org

The website may include bulletin boards, discussion groups and other public areas that allow feedback to Tamworth Enterprise College and interaction between users. Tamworth Enterprise College does not control the information posted to these areas but it does expect contributors to comply with the rules stated here and also to any additional rules that may be introduced for a particular forum (the need to register for instance). Tamworth Enterprise College may delete, move or edit any messages it deems unsuitable without giving a reason.

You are solely responsible for the content of your messages and agree to indemnify Tamworth Enterprise College for any loss that we may suffer because of your action.
